INFORMATION FOR AUTHORS

"Public Health" is a periodical scientific journal published quarterly since 1996. The founder and publisher of the journal is the Lithuanian Institute of Hygiene. The journal "Public Health" was established by the Institute of Hygiene in 1996 in Lithuania. It is a unique scientific journal in the country, specialized purely in public health. It is intended for researchers, public health managers and administrators, experts working in the field of epidemiology, biostatistics, occupational health, health promotion, environmental health as well as other readers interested in the health status of the population and the factors affecting it. The journal is published quarterly. An electronic version of each issue is placed on the website http://www.hi.lt/. The journal publishes peer-reviewed original articles in Lithuanian and English. It also publishes non-peer-reviewed short articles (theses), case reports, and scientific discussions. The non-scientific sections of the journal ('Editorial column', 'For public health practitioners', 'Methodological material') present information on major policy developments in public health, examples of good practice, and published methodological and practical guidelines. Each issue includes a peer-reviewed section with original articles, including topic-related reviews, and non-peer-reviewed sections: editorial and information for public health practice, presenting important health policy news, good practice examples, guidelines, and recommendations. Since 1996, the journal has been on the official list of scientific journals recognized by the Academy of Science of Lithuania and it has been in the Index Copernicus database since 2005 (http://journals.indexcopernicus.com). A fee of EUR 50 is charged for the publication of an article.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

To the editors by e-mail visuomenes.sveikata@hi.lt or via the journal's website, the following must be submitted:

- Electronic version of the article in Microsoft Word (.doc, .docx) format;
- A scanned document (in PDF format), signed by all authors, guaranteeing that the article is original, does not interfere with copyright regulations, has not been previously published, and transfers all copyrights of the article to the publisher if the article is accepted for publication.

All authors of the article must be listed on the title page. Separately in Lithuanian and English, the responsible author (contact person), along with their contact details: institution, institution address, city, country, postal code, e-mail, and telephone number must be indicated.

The text of the article must be typed in size 12-point font, single-spaced between lines. The total length of the article (with all appendices) should be no more than 30 pages. Pages must be numbered.

STRUCTURE OF THE ARTICLE

- Title (up to 150 characters, including spaces and punctuation)
- Authors
- Institution(s) to which the work should be attributed

SECTIONS OF THE TEXT

- Summary in the same language as the article (should not exceed 300 words)

- Introduction, where the purpose of the work is stated
- Objectives and methods of the study
- Results
- Discussion
- Conclusions
- References
- Summary in the other language up to 300 words (Lithuanian, if the article is in English), including the title, authors, institutions, objective, methods, short presentation of the findings, main conclusions, keywords

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

- Tables, figures, diagrams, etc., presented in the text must have a separate enumeration. Illustrations must be of good quality; the text of the illustrations should be clear.
- Abbreviations mentioned in the text for the first time must be explained.
- The fractional part of the number in Lithuanian is separated by a comma (i.e., 2,16 instead of 2.16).
- References to other works should be consecutively numbered in the text using square brackets and listed in the original language by number in the reference list. The list of references should be based on the Vancouver system and on "Uniform requirements for manuscripts submitted to biomedical journals" (JAMA 1997; 277:927-34). The DOI of the cited article must be indicated at the end of the source. To avoid errors and duplicate references, it is recommended that you prepare a list of citation sources using bibliographic reference management programs such as EndNote, Reference Manager, Zotero, or others. Each literary source cited in the article must be associated with a link to the article.

Articles not complying with these requirements will not be accepted.
